Inspired by the glorious sunburnt lands and winding rivers of the East Kimberley region of Western Australia, Argyle Dreaming™ represents one of Calleija’s most significant pieces to date.

Handcrafted from over 600 white, pink, yellow, champagne and blue diamonds from the iconic Argyle Diamond Mine and featuring gold from Rio Tinto’s famed Kennecott mine in the United States. The necklace and ring set is the result of over 800 hours of tireless work by Calleija’s designers and master craftspeople.

The stars of this incredible necklace are two round brilliant cut white diamonds, cut from the same 13.41ct rough Argyle diamond. This spectacular rough will quite possibly be the last of its kind to be unearthed from the Argyle mine ahead of its closure in 2020 - representing the end of an era in Australian history.

Showcasing Calleija’s mesmerising attention to detail, a specially engineered mechanism allows the main white diamond in the necklace to be interchanged with the champagne diamond in the matching ring.

Argyle Dreaming™ is a tribute to the ancient landscape of the Kimberley and the kaleidoscope of spectacular diamonds the region is so renowned for producing.

Dreamlike, bewitching and timeless.
Pink, red and blue diamonds are some of the rarest and most coveted gemstones in the world, entrusted to only the world's finest jewellers. With the closure of Rio Tinto's Argyle mine scheduled for 2020, the latest collection of these extraordinary diamonds from the annual Argyle Pink Diamonds Tender is likely to be among some of the last ever unearthed.

This year, Calleija’s collections feature a number of stunning Argyle tender diamonds. Handcrafted by the master craftspeople of Calleija into timeless works of art, a pink diamond piece from Calleija is not only an incomparably beautiful jewel, but a piece of Australian history to be treasured for generations.
